The following descriptions of each Bally E1000 series machine are not exhaustive. The prospective buyer of any of the machines listed below can research these machines on the Internet, local libraries, or from the Bally Corporation.

The series E1000 machines have been available in California since January 2005.

These machines were not very reliable. The optical reader gave many headaches to both the casino and the players. Hence, there are very few of these machines around. It is our opinion at California Antique Slots that these machines are less valuable than their electromechanical counterparts of just a few years earlier: the 60s and 70s genre.

Many of these machines did not have names. Some of them were the electronic equivalent of the Bally electromechanical. As always, California Antique Slots, Inc. is in the process of researching these machines where information is missing.
